CTM3 Jacquelyn Roberto of Operations Department's, Ship's Signal Exploitation Space believes the best part of her job is variety.

Today's Sailor of the Day is CTM3 Jacquelyn Roberto of the Ship's Signal Exploitation Space (SSES) belonging to the Operations Department.

Since joining the Navy in Jan. 2003, Roberto has proven herself to be a valuable asset, according to her supervisor CTM2 Tyson Sitz.

"Petty Officer Roberto is her division's RPPO, MWR Representative, SAVI Representative, and she will soon be taking over as 3M work center supervisor," said Sitz. "She is an invaluable Sailor and member of the OS Division."

When asked about the CT ratings, some Sailors may believe they are always hidden behind the security of locked doors, handling only classified materials. Roberto assures the crew of the "Gold Eagle" that the belief is a misconception.

"I do a lot of cool things," said Roberto. "My responsibility is to support the other CT rates by ensuring their equipment is mission ready all the time. If it's broke, I fix it."

Not afraid to try new things and get her hands dirty, Roberto takes on a variety of jobs.

I do corrective and preventative maintenance," said Roberto. "I even work on equipment that is located on the flight deck."

One aspect of her work could be considered better than the rest, said Roberto.

"My favorite part of the job is the variety of work I get to do versus sitting behind a desk for eight to twelve hours," she said.

Roberto said she joined the Navy because she felt it was her duty to serve the country as others have done before her. Now, after donning the uniform, she takes pride in representing the hush-hush crypto community.
